THE U.S. PLOT TO CONTROL THE WORLD

human and labour rights lawyer,
peace activist, author and speaker

DAN KOVALIK

Dan Kovalik is a US-based human and labour rights lawyer and peace activist who has been involved for many years in international human rights and social justice issues, mainly in Latin America. He is the author of several books: The Plot to Scapegoat Russia (2017), The Plot to Attack Iran (2018), and his most recent offering, The Plot to Control the World (2019).

He has sharply criticized the foreign policy of the United States, accusing successive Administrations in Washington of war crimes committed under the pretext of defending "democracy, freedom and human rights." He considers the Responsibility to Protect (R2P) doctrine "a tool of U.S. intervention."

Dan currently teaches International Human Rights at the University of Pittsburgh School of Law, and has also worked as the Associate General Counsel for the United Steelworkers union in Pittsburgh.
